Dear Hiring Manager at Auto-Garcon,

I am a senior Computer Science major with a passion for web and server development and I'd love to bring the experience I've gained from my internships, school, and personal projects to the position of either Web UI and Server Developer or Android Developer at Auto-Garcon. Auto-Garcon is an innovative and creative company and a perfect fit for me because I am motivated and always looking to create something new in a unique and better way. My background in web, Android, and server development makes me an excellent candidate for either position.

My internships, work experiences, and projects I have worked on have given me the skills and tools needed to be a successful web, Android, and server developer. These experiences have given me the important skills of communication, teamwork, and problem-solving. Along with these soft skills, I have created many websites and servers using some of the newest technologies in web development, such as Vue, React, Node, and Express. I've created Rest APIs and other server-side services that utilize databases such as MySQL and SQLite and hosted them on Linux machines and on the cloud. I was singled out at my previous internship to create websites for paying clients because of my ability to create good looking and working websites. As shown on my resume, I have multiple web and server development examples that display my talent. My grocery list project demonstrates my web, Android, and server experience all in one, as it combines them all into a well designed and great working web and Android app. I have strong Android app development skills because of my background with Java, Javadocs, and emulators. As a very quick learner, I would be a great fit for the web team as well as the Android team.

My interest in web, Android, and server development has been building for years and I am very excited to use my experience to create great things at Auto-Garcon. I look forward to further discussing my background and qualifications for these positions with you. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Alex Palumbo
